PROGRESSIVE ART PLACED ON VIEW

Carefully Chosen Group of Large Audience Hears Varied Sculptures and Paintings Proves Attractive.

hibits Pictures Having Interesting Colors.

A carefully chosen group of sculptures on to fame and fortune.

Exhibitions of modern art, such as this, of works carefully selected and from Ravel's fine quartet in F major, sympathetically hung have been none too plentiful in New York. More often than plentiful in New York. More often than not our progressive young painters and phase of the "new movement" is disappearing. It is possibly because the movement is no longer so very "new" and for the young modernists to do but to behave themselves and exhibit their work like real artists, as many of them are.

Colors Generally Excellent.

In the present show there are some pictures that are downright cubistic, some that are only cubistic "nor by west" and others that have merely bor-

west" and others that have merely borrowed a new freedom of composition
from cubism, which has been grafted upon a realistic style. The colors in practically all the pictures are excellent.
The converts to cubism are more often led into the faith by the good colors of the cubists than by any other factor.
"It makes a good spot of color on the walls," used to be the excuse for purchasing a Japanese print or a bit of Spanish falence. The pictures by Mary de Anders Diederich in the Bourgeois show must seem "good spots of color"
even to a philistine. Besides that, one almost knows what they represent, which is where Mrs. Diederich triumphs over Spanish falence. Spanish falence.

Mr. Walkowitz's pastels and water Mr. Walkowitzs pastels and water colors are equally enticing as color, and much more subtle. There is one called "At the Seashore" which is possibly an appeal to the future, which the winning of the war will undoubtedly make more democratic. Mr. Walkowitz is not afraid of the idea of the ruling of the masses, and in his picture he has induced them all to go bathing, and in the most peace-ful manner. In the "Summer Melodies" there are more bathers, who disport in a stream, the waters of which have been truthfully observed.

Clever Sculptures.

Hunt Diederich's sculptures are as usual extremely clever. It seems to be no trouble for this sculptor to be origi-nal, and in every group there is some-
